

A CONTEST IN PENMANSHIP

Among the Pupils of Jackson County Schools Arranged For This Year.

PRIZES FOR EIGHT WINNERS

Contest to be Conducted Along Lines of Last Year's Spelling Contest.

The Board of Education at a meeting held at Brownstown completed the arrangements for the writing contest for the schools of the county which is to take the place of the spelling contest which last year aroused so much interest among pupils. The spelling contest was state wide while the writing contest will be confined to Jackson county. As last year's contest created a new and great interest in spelling so the contest this year is expected to result in better penmanship among the pupils of the schools of the county. The decision to have such a contest was reached several weeks ago but the trustees did not reach an agreement as to the detailed plans until a few days ago and they are just being announced.

The manuscripts submitted at the bi-monthly examinations will be used in the tests. The second of those examinations is now being held and according to the plans the teachers in the various schools will after the third of these examinations which will be held in about two months select one or two of the best manuscripts from each grade and these will be taken to the township institutes. The trustee in each township will then select a committee which will select the eight best manuscripts, one for each grade, in each township. This will make eight manuscripts for each township. These will be entered in the final county contest and will be passed upon by a committee consisting of Trustees Steinwedel and Lemp.

In grading the manuscripts in the preliminary and final contests 75 per cent. will be given on penmanship and 25 per cent. on neatness.

It is expected that the prizes will be awarded about the last of March. From now on it is supposed many reams of paper will be used by Jackson county children in practicing penmanship.

LYDIA EWING, Pres.

Robert Emmet Proctor, state senator from Elkhart County and city attorney of Elkhart, has officially announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

Political talk there has Proctor entering the gubernatorial contest as a compromise between Ralston and Boehme. Whether he will get the solid vote of the Thirteenth District is unknown. Temperance Democrats stand opposed to him on account of his part in the repeal of the county local option law. Proctor asserts his candidacy is bona fide, and that he is not in the contest in the interest of Ralston or any other candidate. His friends say they expect him to be a compromise choice.

Judge Ed. Jackson, of this city, the new secretary of the Indiana Lincoln League, is enthusiastic about the coming meeting in New Castle on February 12. He has been receiving reports that indicate there will be a large crowd of Republicans here on that date from all over the state. He is of the opinion that there will be at least 1,000 Republicans from outside of Henry county in attendance.—New Castle Times.

On an affidavit of Dr. Carter, secretary of the health board, Marshal Abell this morning arrested Frank Carroa, the east Second street fruit dealer, on a charge of violating the pure food law by leaving fruit uncovered in front of his establishment. The offense it is said occurred one day before Christmas. Carroa will stand trial in the mayor's court Friday evening.

The Traction Terminal Co. at Indianapolis has made a settlement with the city for interurban cars entering the city. It paid the city 4 cents for each round trip and the number reported on the I. C. & S. was 12,825½. Each line must also pay the city 1 cent a car for each round trip.

Good Things to Eat at Low Prices HOADLEY'S

Actual Values. Chairman Matson of the State Board of Tax Commissioners spoke before the Assessors at Indianapolis this week:

Discussing the question of raising appraisements of property to a basis nearer 100 per cent. of the actual cash value, Mr. Matson said:

"It is the opinion of your orator that the assessment made and now in force throughout the state approaches equality as nearly as can be, under an assessment which fixes values at less than actual, and upon this subject it seems to be imperative that I should remind you again that it is the sworn duty of all of us to remedy this evil by a constant endeavor to bring values up to the standard fixed by the statutes—actual values—the price at which property would sell and not at a forced sale.

"Soon after the close of our last assessment a startling revelation was made to the state board. It was found, after some investigation, that in few of the counties of the state corporations had been properly taxed. They were taxed only on their tangible property, and the corporate excess was left untaxed. Corporate excess is the value of the corporation over and above the tangible property, and in many instances the corporate excess is many times more valuable than its tangible property."

Mr. Matson then illustrated that point with facts brought to light in the state board's investigation of the subject.

"This matter is of such importance that I trust the subject will occupy a very large share of the attention and discussion and consideration of this convention, and that no county assessor will regard his work here well done until he has understood and mastered the question of taxing this corporate excess."

School Figures.

According to figures compiled by Charles A. Greathouse, state superintendent of Public Instruction, the average daily wage of high school teachers in Indiana during the school year of 1900-1911 was $4.41. The average daily wage of the grade teachers was $3.28, and the average for the district teachers was $2.78. All of the figures are estimated.

The estimated value of all school-houses and furniture in the state was placed at $38,842,639.98, and the estimates value of all apparatus was $1,762,319.11. The total estimated value of all school property was $40,604,959.09. The total assessment of taxables on which the school tax was levied throughout the state was $1,732,079,859.70 during the year of 1910.

The total number of polls levied on during that year was 428,327, and the estimated amount to be raised from the special school tax was $6,871,525.61. Other figures compiled by attaches in Mr. Greathouse's office show that the total number of volumes in school libraries of the state during the last school year was 1,254,304, and the number of books taken out to be read was 1,990,744.

The number of books added to the libraries during the year was 102,592. The number of members in the Young People's Reading Circle during the year was 83,281. Township institutes held during the year numbered 6,998, and the amount paid to teachers for attending them was $232,833.70. The total amount paid to school trustees in towns and cities was $85,509.12.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stigdon of North Ewing street, are both confined to their beds with pneumonia.

FAVORABLE TO DEFENDANTS

Important Ruling on Legal Question in Case of Moore et al vs. Schepman et al.

FOR POSSESSION OF FINE LAND

Plaintiffs To Continue Litigation. Appeal to High Court Will Be Taken Ultimately.

In the circuit court Wednesday Judge Shea made a ruling of importance on a legal question in the case of Laura L. Moore et al vs. Mary Schepman et al for possession and to quiet title to about 70 acres of land west of Seymour which is valued at about $14,000 and which has been held for a number of years by Mrs. Schepman and Eliza Claycamp as owners.

The ruling was in favor of the defense and the effect of his ruling is that the plaintiffs are barred in this suit from recovery because their action was not brought within five years from date on which the court confirmed the sale of land made by administratrix of estate of Robert W. Moore, deceased. It was further ruled that as the supreme court at time of Moore's death held that a childless second wife took only a life estate in one third of lands, a later ruling of the court placing a different construction on the statute could not affect sale or contract before the change in court's ruling and the plaintiffs having received part of the proceeds from sale of lands in dispute are estopped from now claiming title to the land.

There are some close legal points involved in the case and the defense will proceed with its case and will probably take an appeal to the higher court ultimately.

Edward Robertson, a Rockcreek township farmer, brought a wagon load of clover seed to Columbus Tuesday and sold it for nearly $1,000. The Union Implement Company bought the supply. It is declared this is the highest price ever paid for a load of seed brought to Columbus.

The consignment brought in by Mr. Robertson consisted of 28 bags and there is between two and a half and three bushels of seed in a bag. Clover seed is said to be unusually scarce this year and the price is higher than ever. Mr. Robertson's seed was of unusual quality, so the local firm offered him more than the market price for it.—Columbus Republican.

F. W. Brown, John Herman and Wm. Polander, county commissioners of Franklin county, and Will Baker, County clerk, all of Brookville, accompanied by Architect Elmer E. Dunlap, of Indianapolis, came down last night to inspect Jackson county's new court house, and especially to look at the metal furniture now being installed. They have about completed remodeling the court house at Brookville, much after the style of Jackson county's new building.—Brownstown Banner.

Mrs. H. J. Martin went to Franklin to assist at a reception this afternoon.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Wednesday Night Old Rooney Opera House Was Burned.

Twenty-five years ago last night occurred the big fire which destroyed the old theatre which stood opposite the Pennsylvania passenger station and was Seymour's only play house at that time. It was a large frame structure and was known as the Rooney Opera House, W. P. Rooney, now clerk at the New Lynn, being the manager. The fire broke out about nine o'clock at night and burned fiercely for hours destroying not only the theatre but damaging neighboring buildings and threatening some of the business houses over on Chestnut street. The city owned an old hand fire engine at that time which loyal citizens for a time worked faithfully. Finally a north bound passenger train on the Pennsylvania came in and the hose was attached to the engine. The train stayed here about three hours until the fire was under control. The night, like last night, was very cold and those who were fighting the fire suffered a great deal. There was no show at the theatre that night and the origin of the fire was unknown.

After the destruction of this theatre, the old frame building which stood where the Teckemeyer grocery is now located was converted into a rink and theatre.

DECEITFULNESS OF RICHES.

Pity the sorrows of the poor millionaire!

Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, himself the possessor of millions, in a recent address before the Business Men's club of that city said:

"The millionaire is an unhappy man."

Why not?

He is a disappointed man. Having made his millions by squeezing back all that is best in him, he has fancied large wealth will bring him large happiness, only to learn his mistake.

It is the human way.

Humans grow tired of any state of life when it is long continued, and the state of being rich is no exception. Being a millionaire gets to be monotonous.

And then—

If the millionaire hopes by buying luxury he can satisfy himself he is doomed to further disappointment. He is like the boy whose appetite is cloyed with much candy. Luxury, like everything else, soon palls.

He cannot buy what he wants.

Midway of old discovered that he could not eat the golden streets. The millionaire who thinks to satisfy himself with money is like the famished traveler of the desert who found a bag which he hoped might contain some food. Upon examination he, hopeless, threw it away, saying:

"Oh, it's only gold!"

Tired of his millions, the rich man yearns for something he cannot get. He wants the things that are denied him, which is the human way also.

"But," you say—

"I should like to make the experiment."

No doubt. But we know not what we ask. Inexperienced in the investment and conservation of money, we should no doubt make a mess of our stewardship.

Give the money away?

That is the most difficult thing the millionaire tries to do. It requires a higher order of talent than to make money. The rich man finds that he is deceived at every turn and worked upon. Seldom does he meet with gratitude.

Therefore it may be said, not in irony, but in very truth:

Pity the sorrows of the millionaire!

HOW TO CIRCUMVENT
WILY TAX DODGERSCounty Assessors Discuss An Important Problem.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11.—In an address before the county assessors and the state board of tax commissioners, in their meeting at the statehouse, William T. Murray, county assessor of Fayette county, advocated close co-operation among county assessors as a means of circumventing the chronic tax dodger.

"The ways of the tax dodger are devious," said Mr. Murray, "and the only way to get him to beat him at his game of shrewdness. By co-operation, the assessor of one county may be able to profit in the quest for the dodger by the experiences of the assessors in other counties, and by the accumulation of knowledge about the dodger's methods, may be able to catch him."

Mr. Murray declared that the method adopted in some townships of leaving an assessment sheet with the taxpayer to be filled and signed in the absence of the assessing official, with the assessor's signature affixed later, was extremely faulty and should not be countenanced by the authorities.

POSSIBILITIES OF CALF ARE DETERMINED BY FEED AND CAREYoungster Should Always be Allowed to Have First or Colostrum Milk of Its Mother and Permitted to Nurse Until Eighth or Ninth Milking—Eight Essentials.

(By D. H. OTIS, Wisconsin.)

Young calves need whole milk for the first few days. The calf should always have the first or colostrum milk of the cow and be allowed to nurse the cow until the eighth or ninth milking, when the milk is suitable for human food. Feed often with small amounts to avoid over feeding. Teach the calf to drink and feed whole milk for at least three weeks, changing to a skim milk diet gradually.

The amount of milk fed should be carefully regulated. A good plan with the normal calf is to give four pounds (two quarts) of whole milk three times per day, fed sweet and at blood temperature. In the state of nature the calf gets milk containing about three per cent. fat. Our domesticated cows have been bred in some instances to give nearly twice this amount. Milk that is too rich may cause serious trouble from scours, and in feeding such milk care should be exercised to give limited amounts at the proper temperature. The feeding of whole milk should be continued for about three or four weeks, when the number of meals may be reduced to two per day. From one-half to a pint of skim-milk may now be substituted for an equal quantity of whole milk. The amount of skim-milk may be gradually increased and the amount of whole milk correspondingly decreased until, at the end of a week or ten days, the calf is getting all skim-milk.

Feed the Calf in a Comfortable

Skim-milk is a cheap feed for calves but should be fed carefully in limited quantities and only while it is warm and sweet. Skim-milk may form the principal diet of the calf for eight months or a year. Factory skim-milk should always be pasteurized to avoid the spread of tuberculosis. The best skim-milk is that which is fresh from the separator and still warm. Experiments show that it is only one-fourth as expensive to raise a calf on skim-milk as whole milk. Two pounds of grain with the proper amount of skim-milk equals one pound of butter fat. Buttermilk or whey may profitably be fed to calves.

Grain for calves should be fed first while the calf is quite small with a little bran to aid the calf in learning to eat. High priced concentrates are unnecessary and give not better results than corn meal, oats and bran, ground barley, etc., when fed in proper combinations. At four to six weeks a calf has good teeth and can grind his own feed. A variety of feeds is advantageous and best results will usually be secured from mixtures.

The following list may serve as a guide to the calf feeder in making selections or combinations to suit his conditions:

1. Corn meal gradually changed in four to six weeks to shelled corn with or without bran.
2. Whole oats and bran.
3. Whole oats and corn chop, the latter gradually replaced by shelled corn in four to six weeks.
4. Ground barley with bran or shelled corn.
5. Shelled corn and ground Kafir corn or sorghum.
6. Whole oats, ground barley and bran.
7. A mixture of 20 pounds of corn meal, 20 pounds of oat meal, 20 pounds of oil meal, 10 pounds of blood meal and 5 pounds of bone meal, changed to corn, oats and bran when calves are three months old.
8. A mixture of 5 pounds whole oats, 3 pounds bran, 1 pound corn meal and 1 pound of linseed meal.

The calf may be taught to eat grain by rubbing a little on its mouth when it is through drinking milk. From this it will soon learn to eat from the feed box.

The roughage for calves should first be fed at two or three weeks of age when the calf begins to eat grain. Good clean hay, either timothy, blue grass, clover or alfalfa, may be used. Corn silage is an excellent calf feed when fed in moderate amounts. Good pasture is an essential after four to six months of age, and if the calf is turned out for only a few hours each day at first scours will be avoided.

R. B. Lopp, minister for the U. B. church is holding meetings at Fairview, Lawrence Co., this week.

Elder J. J. Bare filled his appointment at the Christian church Saturday evening, Sunday and Sunday evening.

Dr. Matlock was called Sunday night to see Claiborn Weddell who is sick at the home of his son, Melvin Weddell. Mr. Weddell celebrated his ninetieth birthday Dec. 3, 1911.

Mrs. Curtis Wayman and Mrs. Horace Smith, who were reported sick last week, are convalescing.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Obedient to the gospel of fresh air, the janitor flushes each school room with fresh air every hour. Result, healthy pupils, no school room coughs are heard.

Next Saturday is the regular township institute. All patrons and friends of the schools are invited. The afternoon session will be interspersed with choice instrumental and vocal music. Two new quartettes are promised. Three special subjects for discussion are: (1) What to do with defective children? (2) How to prevent tardiness. (3) To what extent and under what conditions is corporal punishment permissible.

All parents should come and enter this discussion.

Examinations will be held this week. Parents should pay particular attention to the reports. If you see that your children are in danger of failing in promotion, you should encourage or force them to do some work at home. Every pupil in this school takes a book home. The teacher cannot go into all the homes and have them studied. The parents should see that the books are used.

Mr. Henderson entertained his sevens and eights at his home Friday night with a masquerade party.

Medora is in great need of a social center. Our young people demand recreation and training along social and cultural lines. To meet this demand the teachers of the high school are organizing a Choral Society. Young ladies and gentlemen of the town, of high school age, who possess any musical talent will be invited personally to become members.

Mrs. Kate Shortridge and Mrs. Minnie Matlock visited the primary room last Friday. They speak very highly of the work. That is the most important room in the building. Every mother is anxious to assist in the education of her children. How important, then, that she should understand the methods used by the teacher.

Miss Ina Hamilton visited the schools last Friday.

Miss Irene Rucker, primary at Houston, and Miss Goldie Darr of Brownstown township visited our schools last Monday.

CORTLAND.

Protracted meetings are in progress and considering the cold weather, had a good attendance Sunday night and since.

Rev. Smith filled his appointments at Ackeret's Chapel and Rockford, Sunday.

Miss Rudolph of Jasper, Ind., is at Dr. Jenkins; she has been assisting in the care of Mrs. Dunn.

Mrs. Dunn was taken to Louisville Saturday to a hospital, the doctors being just a little in doubt as to her exact trouble. Her relatives thought a change in diet and environment would do her good.

We are glad to know that Mrs. Kriehagen, who was hurt last week, is now able to go to the table for her meals and is much better in general.

Geo. Wilkerson of Seymour visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wilkerson Sunday.

Friends are glad to hear that Mrs. Dunn is a little better according to Monday and Tuesday's report. She is eating more, was cheerful and content.

Teachers' Institute convened Saturday with a full attendance and an interesting program for the visitors.

Mrs. Kriehagen's sister of Bedford came to see her last week.

Some are missing some very good heart to heart talks by not attending the meetings. Brother Craft is an able speaker; let more come out to hear him. Last night he gave an interesting talk on "Acquaint, now, yourself with God and be at peace, that much good may come to you."

When given as soon as the croupy cough appears Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will ward off an attack of croup and prevent all danger and cause of anxiety. Thousands of mothers use it successfully. Sold by all dealers.

Are You Nervous?

What makes you nervous? It is the weakness of your womanly constitution, which cannot stand the strain of the hard work you do. As a result, you break down, and ruin your entire nervous system. Don't keep this up! Take Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from purely vegetable ingredients. It acts gently on the womanly organs, and helps them to do their proper work. It relieves pain and restores health, in a natural manner, by going to the source of the trouble and building up the bodily strength.

TAKE CARDUI The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Grace Fortner, of Man, W. Va., took Cardui. This is what she says about it: "I was so weak and nervous, I could not bear to have anyone near me. I had fainting spells, and I lost flesh every day. The first dose of Cardui helped me. Now, I am entirely cured of the fainting spells, and I cannot say enough for Cardui, for I know it saved my life." It is the best tonic for women. Do you suffer from any of the pains peculiar to women? Take Cardui. It will help you. Ask your druggist.

CHAPTER II.

A LIAR.

MEMORY suddenly stabbed the man sharply, and he dashed "So far as I can remember," he returned. "I lunched with Brady."

"Nonsense," said she, still struggling with the dimples. "Don't you know there is the greatest difference in the world between a man's bill of fare and a woman's? Look at that," and bending so that the tendrils of her hair brushed his cheek she ran lightly over the incriminating list. "Would two men have ordered such a collection of dreadful things—Martini cocktails, enlaid, mollusques, foie gras au truffes, homard au diable? My dear, oh, my dear, this is a most immoral bill of fare. There was a woman here, I tell you, a woman! And," she whispered mysteriously, catching a reflection of her own bright presence in the mirror, "probably a brunette."

"A woman nothing," protested Granger hotly. He had missed the little vein of light comedy in her mood. He had taken her for a tragedy queen. "It was Brady, I tell you—Brady."

Straightway the scene became charged neither with comedy nor tragedy, but with very quiet, pitiful human drama.

Anna drew her fingers across her eyes as if a bit of lightning had blinded them, that was all.

"Oh, Robert," she said dully. He stood up and faced her.

"Do you mean that you don't believe me?" he asked in a pained tone.

"No, Robert, how could I? I can't believe impossibilities. You forget that Mr. Brady told us he came back from a week's trip in Nantucket last night."

"The finality of such an assertion admits of no discussion," returned Robert coldly, but adroitly.

"No," she said quietly. "I'm glad you don't want to discuss it. It would be foolish, I think, and not in the least interesting." She ended with a soft laugh. It hurt her, but it pleased Robert. It announced that she had changed the subject. Presently:

"I'll just stroll around to the club," said he. So Anna was free to seek refuge in the little vine covered porch back of the children's nursery, to be alone with the night and the stars and to draw in a little of the outside air for which she was stifling.

For a full hour, white faced and staring, she scarcely moved. It was not that she for a moment suspected her husband's loyalty to her—if he had taken any woman to luncheon yesterday it had probably been one of those little typewriters down in the sweltering offices, the tired and most pale faced among them—no one could deny Robert his kindness and susceptibility of heart. Oh, it wasn't that at all which had brought her to this cruel pass! It was that her husband, the father of her children, had proved himself beyond peradventure a deliberate liar. And to her!

That one lie had become, as it were, the torch which lighted up all the dark, perplexing things in Robert; all the odd little things that had refused flatly to be ignored in cropping up, but for which, hitherto, she had found no solution. She had groped through no merciful, slow down to this understanding of him. Being incapable, disqualified by nature, of any conception of a mind that hedged by reflex action, the spelling of falsehood to her meant positive agony.

A breath from the honeysuckle vines entered her dilating nostrils. She sniffed it curiously. "That's how the honeysuckles smelt one summer night when Robert knelt beside me, told me all his beliefs and hopes, swore that my standard of life was his, and I believed him, and I think I thrilled a little. Now, all Robert's beliefs and deeds put together couldn't make me one thrill, and I feel as if I had been alive and was dead, and—and—"All the king's horses and all the king's men couldn't set Humpty Dumpty together again." Oh, I hate him!" she cried suddenly in bitterness. "I hated my father, too; he was another liar."

Then presently, looking up at the stars, she became a little humble; she made no attempt to judge. What was she, in the audacity of her youth, to flinch the privilege of the Almighty? Robert was a gentle little man, who could lie. She should have mated with a strong, big man who couldn't, that was all. Just one mistake among a myriad in a teeming world.

"And what I've got to do is to scurry back into my everyday self as quickly as I can," she concluded. "After all, nothing has happened. Robert is Robert, and I am I, just as we were when we pledged our troth. And yet I could have killed him to-night. To kill a man because he happens to be himself is scarcely reasonable or sane. With this weakness, inherent in his nature, he'll have need of me. And the children want me. I'm indispensable to all of them. I must take my life in my own hands. No one can help me now. It will be amusing to manage it, an excitement."

She rose, but her knees shook in an imbecile sort of way. She laughed a bit sharply out into the dark. "I'm my mother all over again, I see. My young mother died of this sort of thing, I believe." She put her hand out to touch a tiny jutting spur twinkling silver in the new moon's rays and shivered. "But I'll not die of it; I shall fill out. The fall from a fool's paradise hurts—oh, it hurts—but it doesn't kill us in these days."

Closing the balcony door softly, she entered the nursery. The children were fast asleep in their cots. She touched them curiously to see if their soft, warm flesh would thrill her as it used to do.

"Poor little helpless souls! You will need me, won't you?" she said brokenly, crouching down at their side. Robert junior stirred.

"The roof—it has a lazy time," he murmured in his sleep.

Anna smoothed his soft hair and trembled.

"Dear little son," she said, "didn't mother tell you the roof couldn't help being where it is. It was made like that. And the walls they have to hold it up. No, they do not have much fun."

Mr. Marshfield Craven, the confidential friend and legal adviser of the president of the Gotham Trust company, blustered into the president's library in his home up the Hudson, near Ossining. He had come from New York early that afternoon and had much to do before the president's arrival on the 2:30 express.

In hurried, whipping fashion, this drawer was opened, then that. Papers and documents were hastily strewn here, there and everywhere. Unopened envelopes which dunned for attention were quickly torn open and thrown into the wastebasket or on the floor, as the chance might be. All of which proved a sore trial to Mrs. Mason, the president's housekeeper, who was in the last stages of "tidying up" the library.

As usual, when Craven was bustling with work he noticed nothing of his surroundings. He pulled out his watch. Fifteen minutes, yes!

"See if you can rattle off this letter in time for the next post, Miss Graham. Take it directly on the machine," he said, plying his fingers through his thin, gray hair. And he began to dictate.

But there was no confirming click of the typewriter. Craven turned over his shoulder toward the secretary's desk and looked above the rim of his glasses.

"Bless my soul," he exclaimed, "if I hadn't clean forgotten the bird had flown. Humph, Mrs. Mason," he said suddenly, addressing the housekeeper, who stood mutely dusting a generous pipe rack, "what in the world induced Miss Graham to give up her job anyhow? She's been here over a year. She's given entire satisfaction; had her stipend raised twice; always treated considerably—the deuce if I can make it out!"

Mrs. Mason suspended her feather duster and smiled enigmatically.

"She said her health was bad and she wanted a rest."

"Health bad? Fiddlesticks!" grunted Craven. "She had cheeks like Baldwin apples and walked like India rubber."

"Well, for my part, Mr. Craven, I'll be perfectly frank. I'm going to give up my position, too, only I don't intend to lie about it. I'm going because—"

"Because, Mrs. Mason?" The lawyer whirled around with surprise and vexation.

"Well, things don't suit me, sir."

"Then why don't you fire the cook, fire the butler, fire the whole blame outfit if they don't suit you? I know Mr. Temple would rather lose all of 'em than you."

Mrs. Mason finished the pipe rack and began nervously plying her duster among the antlers and engraved hunting scenes.

"Oh, the servants are all right," said she. "Mr. Temple has given me full authority over them. Tisn't the servants I complain of. Besides, a lot of them feel as I do, only they can't afford to quit."

"Eh? What's wrong then?" demanded Craven sharply. A light had fallen on the darkness of his first surprise. He was beginning to understand.

Mrs. Mason left the antlers and hunting scenes and went to the favorite guns.

science—to stay on under this roof."

For a second Craven stood there curiously—this sturdy New England housekeeper who for three years had made the daily routine of living in the Temple home a smooth and comfortable thing.

Her conscience—yes, that was it. She was beginning to feel that she could not live in the same place and take money from a man whom she considered had come by it unworthily. "Puritanism is as lasting in a family as sin—to the third or fourth generation," he thought to himself, the outer corners of his eyes still contracted. "I think, somehow, that sin might be easier to lop off the family tree."

"Yes," went on Mrs. Mason, "and I can't work for a man who has done wickedly as Mr. Temple has. His conduct would reflect on me. There you have it, Mr. Craven. My conscience won't let me give silent consent to his deeds by my presence."

"Oh, I say, Mrs. Mason, come, come," laughed Craven in spite of himself. "Get off old Plymouth rock just for once, that's a good soul!"

"It might be better for your new New York if it stood a bit firmer on old Plymouth rock," snapped she, "instead of Wall street quicksand." She was about leaving the room in high dudgeon when her eye chanced upon some glaring headlines in the morning's paper which, with other journals, Craven in his bustle had done upon the floor.

"See! See that!" she said, picking it up and handing it triumphantly to the lawyer. "It's that piece in today's paper which has finally decided me to make a change. All about the Granger case and Mr. Temple's connection with it. Look!"

"Justice and high finance," read Craven half aloud in due, sneering fashion. "The continued silence on the part of Mr. Burton Temple regarding his connection with the Granger case only confirms suspicion in the minds of the thinking public."

"Thinking public," that's good," ejaculated he. He bit off the end of a cigar. "Every successful man's a cur and every rich man a malefactor in that blessed thinking public's eye."

"Just read it through, please," pleaded Mrs. Mason, with clasped hands.

"When the law is so flagrantly defied it is time that the American public made a stand. The Granger case has gone a step too far. It is one thing for a rich man to avoid punishment; it is another thing for a rich man to avoid punishment by throwing the guilt on another's shoulders. There is scarcely a man today who does not believe that Robert Granger is a scapegoat for Burton Temple."

"Why in the name of heaven must this Granger case come up again?" shouted Craven, throwing down the paper with a hot expletive. "Granger had a fair trial, was convicted, sent to prison, and now, not content with the justice of their own courts, these newspapers are trying to get him out."

"And send Mr. Temple in his place to serve his term," finished Mrs. Mason quietly, "where he deserves to be," she added in measured tones. "There, I've said it. To be silent is to acquiesce. It is sheltering evil. Tisn't always easy to speak out our thoughts. But I've been taught where a principle is concerned it's our duty to do so. It's like the sun—it purifies." Her chin was well up in the air.

A pause. Craven's cigar was out, and he was slow about relighting it. "The sun purifies, yes," sighed he, "but it germinates too. Half the moral and social crimes would cease if women and men also buried the other half in silence. That hysterical desire to express it belongs to a past age. Mrs. Mason," he said sternly, "after all, we don't know much about our neighbors' lives—really any of us—so it's safer and wiser to be kind in our judgments, eh? None of us needs to resolve himself into a fraction of the day of judgment, thank God." He swallowed hard, this old stoic of a lawyer. "And, by thunder," he exploded, "if three years' knowledge of a man's daily life, with all its integrity and fineness and honesty of purpose, must go for naught then!"

The telephone bell interrupted. Mrs. Mason, close at hand, took the message.

"It's Miss Dale, Miss Graham's successor," announced she, awaiting Craven's orders.

"Have her shown up," tartly. And incisively. "Hope she'll prove as capable a secretary as Miss Graham and a fairer woman."

With this little dig he turned to the big bay window and let the air of the Hudson cool his brow, while the housekeeper stood at the door to usher in the new secretary.

"Anna, Anna!" she gasped, stepping back, confounded.

AIDS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE.

When keeping bread warm to rise in winter, a slate stone made warm on which to set the pan will hasten the process.

Now that eggs are so scarce, an eggless cake will be welcome.

Eggless Fruitcake.—Take two cups of brown sugar, one cup of molasses, a pint of boiling coffee, a pound of fat salt pork chopped fine, a tablespoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of cloves, allspice, ginger and a pound of currants, a half pound of shredded orange peel, lemon and citron, and a half pound of chopped nut meats. Over this pour the hot coffee and molasses and soda. Add flour to make stiff. Bake slowly two hours.

When roasting meat, parboil a few small, juicy turnips until nearly tender, then lay them in with the meat, and baste occasionally until well done.

Never try to boil when using the oven, as opening the stove will cool the oven. Parboiling in a hot frying pan will do when the better way is not available.

A fine cake mixer when one is making enough to go to the bother, is a small ice cream freezer can. Put in the ingredients and beat with the paddle by turning the crank.

German Mush.—Cook a ham or beef bone until the meat falls off. Salt the water and stir in oat meal, cook until well done, then turn out into greased pans to mold. Slice and fry.

To preserve brooms, dip them for three minutes in a pail of boiling soap suds every week. This cleanses them, makes them more tough and pliable and they will wear longer.

A delicious accompaniment to fried chicken is fried mush. Fry the mush before it gets cold. It will be crispier and sweeter than if it were molded before it is fried.

IT ALL DEPENDS ON THE HANDWRITING
Experts to Be Called On In Packers' Trial.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—When Judge Carpenter ruled out the testimony of Jerome H. Pratt insofar as it relates to the identification of figures and notations made on government exhibits, which he previously had said were in the handwriting of J. Ogden Armour, Arthur Meeker and Thomas Connors, three of the defendants, there was joy in the ranks of the ten packers on trial in the United States district court here.

But the ruling was no bomb in the camp of the government's attorneys. The testimony given by Pratt, former manager for Armour & Co., may yet be admitted if experts on handwriting attribute the notations to the men to whom Pratt has ascribed them. This turn of affairs forecasts the possibility of the introduction of chirographic experts to identify the handwriting of the three previously mentioned defendants.

The exhibits in question are those sent Pratt in the usual course of business of the firm of Armour & Co. Pratt was, it is said, the emissary of Armour & Co. at the Tuesday meetings of the alleged pool or price making institution of the packers. This "pool," the government maintains, fixed the prices of fresh meat, and through such action violated the Sherman law, which prohibits combinations which restrain trade in any commodity or necessity of life. That it is the intention of the government to introduce handwriting experts there can be little question. The ruling of the court was anticipated. That is, the government attorneys were prepared when the ruling was announced to proceed along lines calculated later to make the evidence of Pratt admissible through substantiation by chirographic experts.

Henry F. Moyer, who for more than a quarter of a century has been with Armour & Co., and is known in Packingtown as the "Wizard of Figures," was questioned by government attorneys on the "test cost" figures of fresh meats. Mr. Moyer said there was a period when the value of the hides from steers was given no credits in figuring the productivity of head of beef. This period had its inception about the time of the threatened panic of 1907.

Novel Use for Eiffel Tower.

An attempt is to be made to use the Eiffel Tower for the purpose of protecting Paris and the surrounding country from the ravages of hail stones. M. de Beauchamp, a French scientist, has made some very successful experiments with electric column of only 100 feet in height, by means of which he was able to protect the surrounding land within a radius of two miles. Equally successful results in the case of the Eiffel Tower would be of importance, from an agricultural point of view, to the country around Paris.

Girl Teacher Lassoes Coyote. Gillette, Wis.—Miss Alta Scott, a school teacher, while riding in the country, lassoed a coyote which her dog had scared up. The noose caught one foot of the animal, which the girl held until the dog attacked it. Then she dismounted, seized a big stone, and threw it, killing the coyote. The teacher's accuracy in throwing the stone is said to have been remarkable, as dog and coyote were struggling in such a manner as to make it difficult to throw at the coyote without danger of striking the dog.

STORY HER LEGACY

Girl Bequeaths Details of Own Suicide to Reporters.

Newspapermen Befriended Woman When She Was Arrested for Attempting to Slay Man Alleged to Have Jilted Her.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Her love unreturned by the man whom she had twice planned to kill, Miss Johanna Rascop, a waitress, opened the gas jet in her room at No. 449½ South Spring street and was found dying. She was dead when the police ambulance arrived at the Receiving hospital.

Without intimating that she intended to end her life, the young woman told Mrs. A. B. Hassel, her landlady, that she was very grateful to the newspaper reporters for the assistance they had given her when she got into trouble, and she asked that they be told "whatever they wanted to know about Miss Rascop."

Miss Rascop was arrested September 6 in a cafe on South Main street when she fired a pistol at William Rudolph, the manager, whom she declared, had jilted her. She was taken to the central police station, and there made a statement that Rudolph had misled her. She was without funds or friends. A number of newspaper men secured the services of Attorney Frank Dominguez, and the young woman was released upon her own recognizance pending her trial. Rudolph charged her with assault with a deadly weapon. He appeared against her in the superior court about ten days ago, and she was found guilty and placed on probation. Mrs. Hassel, who accompanied Miss Rascop to the courtroom for her trial, discovered that the young woman had a revolver in her hand bag, and she learned that the girl was planning another attack upon Rudolph.

She left three notes, one to Rudolph, another to Mrs. Hassel and the third to Mrs. Margaret Wortmann, No. 132 South Flower street. Mrs. Wortmann is a sister of Miss Rascop.

To Rudolph she wrote that he was the only man she had ever loved, and that he might now live in peace. She denies that she had ever wanted any of his money. She predicts punishment for him. The note to Mrs. Hassel declares that it is better for her to die. To her sister and the latter's husband, Miss Rascop wrote that it were better to see her dead than in the penitentiary, where she would go if she lived.

PASTOR BUILDS BIG FENCE

All Work on Stone Wall 100 Feet Long Done by Himself—Builders Praise Work.

Montclair, N. J.—Rev. Dr. Thomas Travis, pastor of the Watchung Avenue Congregational church, who is one of the few Montclair preachers who did not take a vacation, finished the construction of a stone fence about 100 feet long and two feet thick on the grounds of his new $15,000 home in Watchung avenue. The labor was all done by his own hands, and builders say it reflects credit on his ability.

Dr. Travis is a great believer in outdoor work as a means of promoting health. A large wood pile at the rear of his grounds attests to his energies in still another form of manual labor. He also is an excellent gardener and spends much time looking after his plants and vegetables. Dr. Travis also is well known as a criminologist, having written a book on the subject. Recently he caused a sensation by his denunciation of conditions in the Caldwell penitentiary, which is maintained by Essex county. Dr. Travis denounced the penitentiary authorities, saying they have not adopted modern means of reformation. He advocates outdoor work for inmates of penal institutions.

DON'T HAVE TO BE FAT

Surgeon's Knife Is Latest Cure for Obesity — Woman Has Tried It.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Dr. W. Wayne Babcock at the Samaritan hospital here demonstrated the most up to date method of making a stout person slim and sylphlike, and allowing all women to glory in the straightest of "straight fronts," should they agree that such shall be the style. The technical name of the operation performed by Dr. Babcock for the edification of the surgeons attending the clinic is "resection of abdominal wall for obesity."

The patient was a woman. Twelve pounds of fat had been removed.

The operation itself seemed to be simple. Dr. Babcock said that with a skilled surgeon such an operation was not dangerous to the patient. Great care had to be exercised so that no muscles were not severed.

TELLS OF HARDSHIPS

Alaska Gold Miner Sends Plea to Judge.

William R. Miller of Glacier Creek implores Jurist Not to Grant a Divorce to Wife for Desertion—Writes of Struggle.

Spokane, Wash.—William R. Miller, a placer gold miner of Glacier Creek, Alaska, gives an inkling of the struggles of prospectors in the North country in a pathetic letter to the probate judge of the Spokane county superior court, protesting against the granting of a decree to his wife, Mrs. Jane Miller, a nurse, in Spokane, who instituted proceedings for divorce, charging desertion in 1897 and failure to provide for his family.

Miller says in his letter that he has received no notice of the pendency of the divorce case from his wife or her attorneys, but heard of the case from roundabout sources. He recites numerous reasons why the divorce should not be granted and makes a pathetic plea for the preservation of his home and fireside. To combat the charge of neglecting to provide for his family he has sent postal receipts to show that he has sent $800 at various times. Part of the letter follows:

"I have slaved and worked for years as no other man in the Yukon has ever labored, always looking forward to the time when I could again join my family in circumstances that would assure our independence in the declining years of our lives.

"Four years I worked in the ditch to build a canal to my claim, and when I had finished the work and was about to start to wash out the gold a terrible flood came and washed away a good part of my labors. Another year and a half was then spent in repairing this damage, when the news came last spring that my daughter had been accidentally shot and killed last February near Spokane. This news so upset me that it brought on heart trouble, and for months I was unable to do a thing. Last July I again began work, and when about to reap the reward of the years of my labors I hear the word from roundabout sources that my wife has sued for a divorce.

"I wish to impress upon your mind that my home has been my first and last thought every day since I first landed here, in 1898, and that I love my wife and family dearly. I visited home for some time in 1901, and again eighteen months ago, and had I thought then that there was anything of this kind in her mind I would have given up my claim and suffered the loss of all my hard work rather than see my family rent asunder. I cannot help but believe there is some kind of conspiracy or some one has persuaded my wife to do as she is doing, or that her mind has become confused through the loss of her daughter.

Miller had negotiated a sale of a half interest in his claims to a syndicate at Seattle, but says his wife wrote to the Seattle firm handling the trade and spoiled the deal. He asserts his claims are valuable, and that he expects soon to see them turning out gold.

Miller requests that if a divorce must be granted the court make it an interlocutory decree, forbidding the remarriage of his wife, so that he may, after his accession to wealth and return to civilization, again have a chance to win her back.

MOTOR SLEDS FAIL TO WORK

Lieutenant Filchner Forced to Fall Back on Ponies for Polar Trip to Discover Character of Land.

Berlin.—The hardy Khirgiz ponies which the German antarctic explorer, Lieutenant Filchner, left behind when his ship, the Deutschland, sailed from Buenos Aires, Argentine, will be taken on another vessel to the island of South Georgia, one of the Falkland group, thence the expedition will proceed for the frozen south. Motor sleighs have proved impracticable.

The Deutschland is equipped with wireless telegraph apparatus, but of a limited range, about 600 miles. There is a powerful radiograph station on one of the tiny islands off Tierra del Fuego, and this will make it possible for the Deutschland to receive corrections of time, etc., a long distance, although it will not be possible for her to reply.

Filchner's purpose is to learn, if possible, the character of the land in the antarctic circle; whether there is really a continent or islands divided by frozen arms of the sea.

BIG AID TO WEATHER BUREAU

For Dissemination of Weather Forecasts Telephones Have Played Important Part.

Telephones are handmaids to the weather bureau. Diligent efforts have been made on the part of the bureau to increase the distribution of weather forecasts, and the principal part of this work has been directed toward the dissemination of forecasts through the medium of the telephone companies, and they have responded almost unanimously to the invitation to co-operate for the benefit of their subscribers. During the year several states of the middle west and on the Pacific slope were canvassed, and as a result a large number of telephone companies in those states are now co-operating with the bureau in this important work.

One of the largest telephone companies operating in the southern states, which has heretofore declined to take up the work of distribution, has fallen into line, and is now giving its subscribers the benefit of the daily forecasts through a large number of exchanges, particularly in Mississippi and Tennessee. In the middle west the telephone is largely used for transmitting forecasts, and the weather information is much appreciated. The officials of the companies state that the number of calls that come into "central" daily for weather reports is surprising. They say that it is an advantage to them to have the opportunity of distributing the information free, as this aids in securing more subscribers. Some officials are enthusiastic in their commendation.

BIG WHISTLES OF "OLYMPIC"

Each Set, One on Each of the Forward Funnels, Are Controlled by Electricity.

The whistles of the "Olympic" are the largest ever made. Each set, of which there are two, one on each of the forward funnels, consists of three bell domes, 9 in., 15 in. and 12 in. in diameter, grouped together on a branch piece, says the Popular Mechanics. The height from the base of the branch piece to the top of the center dome is 4 ft. 2½ in., and the combined weight of the three domes and the branch piece is 764½ lbs.

The whistles, which are electrically controlled, are so arranged and tuned as to give the distinctive harmonious blast which is known by the White Star line navigators as their own recognized sound.

The Light of The World

By Rev. Stephen Paulson

TEXT.—And the Lord went before them by day in a pillar of cloud to lead them the way; and by night in a pillar of fire to give them light.—Exodus 13:12.

First I want you to see the connection between these two widely separated texts. The one is from the account of the journey of Israel through the trackless wilderness; the second, Jesus spoke centuries later, as he was present at the feast of tabernacles in Jerusalem. The first verse describes the customary way in olden times, of leading large bodies of men on the march, whether caravans or armies. A tall pole was erected at the head of the marching column, on which was hung a basket of fire. The glare of the fire was visible from every part of the camp at night, and in the daytime the column or pillar of smoke guided the movements of the host. The only difference in the case of the Israelites was that the Lord was in the fire, and that he controlled and guided the movements of the people. In the time of Jesus the Jews were wont to commemorate at the feast of the tabernacles, the time when they were wanderers in the desert, and God made provision for their sustenance and safety. They lit large lamps or torches around the temple to symbolize the pillar of fire, and then gave themselves up to dancing and revelry.

As Jesus stood in the temple area and looked over the people, he saw that they needed guidance even more than they did in the desert, and that they needed light now just as much as they needed the pillar of fire of old. These lights about the temple were merely reminders of past mercy, and possibly many of the people had even forgotten their significance; but here was he, the Guide of all lives. Here was he, the Light of all ages. So he speaks, "I am the Light of the world." These words come down to us out of the old Hebrew temple, and they pierce the center of our modern life.

"I am the 'Light of the world.'" When the sun rose this morning, it found the world here in darkness. It was torpid, heavy with sleep, its powers were all wrapped up in sluggishness. The sun found the great world sleeping and woke it. It called to the dull birds and they sang their matins; it sent its light over the fields and painted them in colors beyond the power of any artist to imitate; it touched the flowers, and they opened their petals to the glory of a new morning; its rays entered the houses, and men awoke and began to move about their daily duties. It was an awakening, an energizing, a renewal of life, this morning's sunrise.

Even so it was when the Light of the world rose upon mankind. It meant an awakening, new energy, a renewal of life. No one can tell all that it meant when Jesus came into the world, for his coming had a thousand meanings, it had ten thousand influences which we are too dull to appreciate and too short-sighted to observe. But we know that when the Light of the world came it meant a new era in history, and we know that when Jesus comes into the human heart it means a new era in that man's life. Let us note one or two applications which these texts point out to us:

God's people of old were not led by a road already mapped out. The route was not chosen before they started. But step by step and day by day they were led, and God chose the route. Is not Jesus the great Leader of his people, and we have learnt a chief article of human wisdom if we have learnt to leave tomorrow to him. Step by step he leads us. The way may be dark and hidden from us, but it is all light and plain to him, for he is the light.

As the pillar of fire was given to guide the host of Israel of old, so is Jesus the pillar of light which guides the church today. Yes, he stands today in the midst of the host, majestic, dominating the centuries, leading the church as the great army of God.

One evidence that the Light of the world is directing the movements is that the whole church is becoming awake to its duties and opportunities. The light of the morning wakes not only one class of men, but all far and near. So the Light of the world is sending his rays today into all hearts. Great movements are sweeping over America today among the men of the churches. They are realizing the folly of their own lethargy and indifference, and are waking to the new morning and a new day's work. The housewives have been asleep long since. Woman's devotion to her Lord, and her self-sacrificing labors, have been one of the glories of the Christian church from the beginning. And now the Master is marshaling the men to the front.

What of Slavery. Let us recall the church of God by turning on the light of knowledge, so that all men may unite in devising ways and means for saving the misguided and degraded at our own doors, instead of expending our time, money and energy in trying to convert the so-called heathen in foreign lands.—Rev. F. W. Miller, Universalist, Woodlawn, Ill.

WHY ARE WE RIGHT HANDED?

Recent Explanation of Psychologist Causes Much Merriment Among Some Medical Men.

The most recent explanation of right-handedness, by a psychologist, is exciting some merriment among medical men. He supposes the human body to have unexplained polar properties, somewhat like those of a magnet, the right side being always "positive" and the left "negative." The most rational explanation would seem to be that which accounts for right and left handedness by the position of the heart. The shield would naturally be held in the left hand to protect this vital organ, so that the active work would fall to the right hand. Those who maintain that acquired characteristics cannot be inherited will desire to have this expressed somewhat differently. According to them the positions of spear and shield were at first a matter of individual choice, but those who held the shield in the right hand, leaving the heart exposed, were more frequently killed, so that by natural selection the right hand spear holders ultimately survived and propagated their peculiarity. In this case, it will be noticed, the inherited characteristic is not acquired, but existed in the warrior at birth. The difference may not seem worth quarrelling about, but it measures the whole distance between the followers of Darwin and those of Lamarck. At any rate, the hypothesis, in which ever form it is put, seems eminently reasonable, whereas talk about "polarity" would appear to be mostly verbiage.

PICTURES ON FINGER NAILS

One of Latest Fads in Germany. Growing Out of Whim of Cousin of the Kaiser.

One of the latest fads in Germany is the mounting of photographs on the finger nails, the idea growing out of the whim of a cousin of the Kaiser.

who had an enameled portrait of her fiancé worked on the nail of her little finger, says the Popular Mechanic. This portrait was a work of art and cost $90, but now the fashionable manures of Berlin have taken up the idea in the photograph form.

The feature of this work by manicures is rendering the photograph waterproof, which is done by coating it over with a shellac-like substance burned upon the nail. It is said that, with careful handling, a photograph so mounted will last about four months without renewal.

Narcotic Cartridge Invented. Karl Burgsmüller of Krefeld, Germany, has devised a means for temporarily narcotizing animals—i. e., rendering them insensible. He fills a cartridge with a mixture composed of substances containing capsaicin in an immediately gasifiable form, and of an easily inflammable substance to accelerate the gasification. This is combined with a small quantity of an explosive agent between the mixture and an explosive cap with which the cartridge is provided. Possibly this is the explosive of the pistols sold for rendering burglars insensible.

Pretty Bonnets

There is no end to the variety in shapes and styles designed for children this season. Taking their cue from the liking for bonnets shown by grown-ups, designers have copied nearly all the shapes, modifying them more or less for little folks. This branch of millinery—millinery for children—has shown a wonderful development in the past three years. This is the result of specializing, on the part of designers and trimmers, who showed a marked talent for making children's hats.

The bonnet shown, made of alternating folds of beaver cloth and plaid velvet, is modeled on the Dutch cap, with the crown extended. It is distinctly childish. The ribbon ties and bow at the side are of plaid, corresponding to the velvet, and the design is bright and attractive.

BOOTS TO MATCH THE GOWN

Costume and Footgear Must Be of the Same Material—Shoes for Dancing.

"How much do I require for a pair of boots?" is the question which the smart woman may have to ask next time she is buying material for a new frock.

A representative was informed at a leading house the other day that the latest fashion from Paris decrees that costume and footgear must be made of the same material.

Thus a striped tweed will necessitate a pair of boots of the same tweed, and a blue serge will be worn with blue serge boots.

The representative was told that it was usual to have the entire boot made of the dress material, but it was permissible to have the fashion carried out only in the uppers.

"The boots are very comfortable to wear," it was stated, "and they make the feet look much smaller, as no prominence is given them when they are clothed in the same material as the skirt."

"In the matter of house and evening shoes, the rule is not stringent. Patent shoes are being worn a good deal, and so are satin laced-trimmed shoes."

"Gilt and silver kid shoes will be very popular for dancing."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

spouding to the velvet, and the design is bright and attractive.

This little bonnet is comfortable, protecting the head from cold and has the additional virtue of being inexpensive.

A little Napoleon shape made of plain velvet is faced with shirred chiffon at the front and trimmed with a rosette of this soft material placed at each side of the crown. The brim droops at the back over the hair. This is a beautiful and comfortable model upon which it would be hard to improve in any way. It is more dressy than the bonnet of plaid and cloth and may be worn with or without ties of chiffon. An elastic band fastens it to the head in either case.

DEFECT OF MODERN SOCIETY

So Great the Expenditure for Clothes That Little is Left to Be Employed Elsewhere.

The cost of dress, the absurd lengths to which expenditure goes on luxurious and sumptuous clothing, is now pushed to such an extreme that a woman's fortune, like that of a savage beauty, may often be seen on her person, and there is no margin left for entertaining, for all that makes social intercourse delightful.

Three years ago it was said by a senator's wife that only the very rich could now give dinner parties at all, and that for modest fortunes entertaining in any form, except the mild dissipation of afternoon tea and cakes, was out of the question.

What, it may be asked, is the use of all this amazing expenditure on finery, if the furs and trinkets, the hats and robes are not to be exhibited on festive occasions to friends and admirers? A woman may be dressed to perfection from head to foot, but if no one is to see it, and sociability goes by the board in the effort to be beautiful, to what end has she made all this effort?

The matter is grotesque, and why her men folk do not put a stop to it is food for wonder. You might as well, if you were a child, have a doll which is attired in such costly and sumptuous fashion that you can never take it out of its cupboard, nor afford to ask your little friends to tea to look at it.

There is no doubt that in France, where the love of dress originates, and where our woman first fall a victim to this fever for clothes, they worship to the point of absurdity the well-dressed woman.

Tidy Blouses.

Blouses made of thin fabrics often look untidy and unfinished at the back, owing to the difficulty in concealing the sewing on of the hooks or buttons. A neat way to do this is to stitch on a small box plait after the hooks have been sewed on, or the sewing which shows through can be covered over with lace, a band of embroidery or any suitable trimming.

When it is the placket hole that is hanging loosely, and in the case of a fragile fabric, it seems likely to tear, sew a hook and eye as far down each side as possible and press the hook together to keep it from coming unfastened. This will hold the ends of the placket hole together and prevent any chance of their dragging and tearing.

Dye Hat Roses Artistically.

Faded artificial flowers are well worth wearing if made to look like new by the following plan: Buy a packet of one of the many cheap dyes in the desired shade. Prepare it and test it with white muslin to be sure it is the right shade, and then, after brushing and shaking the flowers free from dust, dip the beads into the dye, lift out and rinse in cold water. Then, if they are flowers with centers of a deeper shade, such as roses, mix a small quantity of the dye in a thicker consistency, so that it is a few shades darker, and paint the middle petals only very lightly with a paint brush dipped in this, after the first coating has dried. The stalks and leaves should be painted all over with gum.

PAPER PULP OF SUGAR CANE

One of Greatest Problems of Mercantile World Solved by Recent Discoveries in Trinidad.

One of the greatest problems that are brought before the mercantile world for consideration as a result of the rapid decrease in the timber supply is the discovery of a fitting substitute for wood pulp in the manufacture of paper. A short time ago we published a report of the French system of making paper pulp from vines. The latest suggestion, however, is the utilization of sugar cane, and as far as it has been tested it has appeared in the light of a genuine solution.

The planters in Trinidad have found that they can add enormously to their yearly profits by raising their cane and treating it with the specific object of turning it into paper, with the manufacture of sugar as a mere side issue. The process which they have now adopted makes it possible to use all the fiber of the cane for paper and at the same time to get more sugar from it than by any of the old methods. The United States consul at Santiago morevoer reports that the manufacture of paper from the cane is exciting considerable interest and some investment in all the sugar country and an American company has installed special machinery at Preston on Tripe bay.

The machinery will separate the pulp from the fiber. The water is eliminated and the pulp and fiber dried with all the elements of sugar still in them. The pulp and fiber are handled separately and the sugar extracted so that the fiber is not broken. High grade paper can be made from the fiber and from the pulp residue a coarser product is turned out which has a commercial value, while the quality of the sugar is in no wise affected.

SHAKER FOR CEMENT SIEVES

Pennsylvania Man Designs Convenient and Rapid Device for Making Fineness Tests.

A. D. Gates, Bureau of Standards Testing Laboratory, Northampton, Pa., describes in Engineering News a convenient and rapid mechanical shaker for cement sieves designed by him, which is being used in making fineness tests on cement for the Panama canal. It is shown by the drawing herewith.

The machine is composed of a wooden board resting on rollers, which are attached to a steel frame. The board is reciprocated by a pitman attached to a 16-inch pulley on a 1 inch crank shaft. The pulley is driven by a belt from a small motor. The board, on which the sieves and collecting pans are placed, carries two blocks of wood for each sieve; these are cut to 4 1/2 inch radius, or larger than that of the sieves, and are set 1/4-inch off center, so that when the apparatus is in operation the sieve is shaken well and at the same time is rotated. Around the outside of each collecting pan is attached a piece of felt, so that impact with the board may be deadened. The reciprocating part has a stroke of 2 inch. Its speed is 200 strokes per minute. Sieves of standard size are used.

Mr. Gates claims that one can make 75 complete fineness tests in a day by using the machine, while it would require six men to make the same number of tests by the hand method. It requires about 15 minutes to make the test on the 200 sieve, and 5 minutes on the 100 sieve, making a total of 20 minutes per set of samples, or an average of 6 2/3 minutes per sample. Further, the results obtained with the machine are more uniform than those obtained with hand shaking.

THE ELECTRICAL WORLD

ELECTRIC HEATER IS UNIQUE

As Arranged by Three Michigan Men It Is Divided Into Three Parts—Set Up Where Needed.

It took three Michigan men to design the electric heater here shown, but when they were through they had an apparatus that can be put up in any room of the house in a few minutes. A circular stand with four legs forms the bottom part. On this rests a steel plate of horseshoe shape with two projections on the ends upon which the electric wires are plugged to provide the current. The third part of the apparatus consists of a cylindrical chamber with a top and closed at the bottom, that forms the heater proper. This chamber fits on the stand and a center rod runs through the center of the stand and is clamped in place, holding the affair together. This device can be used not only to take the chill off the bathroom or any other room before the heater is started in the cellar, or it can be used as a stove to heat food that does not require a very hot fire.

WAY TO PRINT PHOTOGRAPHS

Calhoun System Enables One to Use Steady Electric Light With Automatic Time Device.

In printing photographs by natural light, a photographer spends much of his time in watching the effect of the light which is not always uniform. The Calhoun photo printer enables the photographer to use steady electric light and to set an automatic timing device which cuts off this light at the proper time, says the Popular Electricity. The light is provided by a movable cluster of incandescent lamps within a cabinet. It is claimed that with good weather and sunlight a photographer can print 200 photographs in a day. With the device described 2,000 photographs may be printed in the same time. The machine requires three amperes to operate.

WIRELESS IN CONGO STATE

System Is to Be Carried Out Covering 1,860 Miles With Transmitting Stations Along Route.

It appears from a note in the columns of the Electrical Review that a system of wireless telegraphy is to be carried out in the Congo state, following the course of the Congo up to the Katanga district for a distance of 1,860 miles, transmitting stations are to be erected in all the principal places. The apparatus of the Radio-Electrique as used in the French possessions will be employed in the neighborhood of the French colonies, while the usual apparatus of the Telefunken Gesellschaft will be used in the vicinity of the German colonies. It is proposed to endeavor to reach an understanding with France and Germany with regard to the wave length, in order to bring the whole system into agreement. Telefunken stations are to be established at Tabora and Ujiji, in German East Africa, and French stations are to be erected at Loango and Brazzaville. It will therefore be possible to telegraph through the whole of the African continent from the port of Dar-es-Salaam and thus obtain a connection with Europe through a cable on the west coast.

WAITING LIST IS GROWING LONGER

Indiana Soldiers' Home Full to Its Capacity.

NO ROOM FOR NEW APPLICANTS

Report For the Year Shows That the Home at Lafayette Not Only Has More Members Than Ever Before, but That the Waiting List Is Constantly Increasing—A Total Population of 1,036.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 11.—When the board of trustees of the state soldiers' home assembled here for the first meeting of the year, Colonel D. B. Kohler, commandant of the institution, reported the largest attendance in the history of the home. The roll call showed just 971 members and sixty-five officers and employees, giving the home a total population of 1,036. This is not the total membership, as a number of members are out on furlough, but it is the largest number of members ever in the home at any one time.

The home is crowded to its capacity and the waiting list is growing longer.

DELAY IN TRIAL

Gary Bribery Cases Will Not Come Up Until March Term.

Gary, Ind., Jan. 11.—Instead of the next Gary bribery cases being tried on Monday, Jan. 15, at Valparaiso, all have been postponed until some time in March. This announcement was made by Special Prosecutor W. F. Hodges, following the receipt of a letter from his associate counsel, Samuel Parker of South Bend, named by Governor Marshall as special attorney for the state in the bribery cases.

The inability of Judge Vernon Van Fleet of the Elkhart superior court, special judge in the Gary cases, to clear up the docket in his own court is assigned as the reason for the delay.

GOOD ADVICE

Dr. Hurty Has a Word of Cold Weather Admonition.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11.—Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health, is preparing to issue a circular letter to be sent all over the state, urging parents whose children are compelled to use school hacks, to instruct their children not to wait at country crossroads for the hack when the hack is late, as complaints show them usually to be, but to keep on walking in the direction of the school building.

"Standing in the cold is deadly," declared Dr. Hurty, "and should not be required in this kind of weather of either children or adults."

Ensley Must Face Trial.

Indianapolis, Jan. 11.—Oliver P. Ensley, treasurer of Marion county from 1904 to 1906, will be called upon to face trial again in the Marion criminal court for alleged embezzlement of $20,000, according to an opinion handed down by the Indiana supreme court. The indictment against Ensley was quashed when the case was tried in the Marion criminal court the second time last spring. The first trial of the case resulted in a disagreement.

Stork Deserts Fashionable Homes.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 11.—Records in the office of the city health department show that in the fashionable parts of the city there were only four babies born during the year of 1911. In one section, known as the most exclusive social part of the city, not a single child was born during the year. During the year there were 1,245 babies born in the city.

May Get New Courthouse.

Danville, Ind., Jan. 11.—On account of the collapse of the roof of the Hendricks county courthouse, the January term of court will be held in new quarters. The county office rooms on the ground floor are not thought to be in danger. The records are safe and work was resumed as usual. It is believed the building will be replaced by a new one.

Victim of Live Wire.

Shelbyville, Ind., Jan. 11.—When Elsie Porter of this city, employed by the Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company as a lineman, was on a pole belonging to the company near Acton, he took hold of a live wire highly charged and was knocked to the ground. Porter was picked up unconscious and it is thought he will die.

Caught Between Engines.

New Albany, Ind., Jan. 11.—James W. Bottoms, aged twenty-three, employed as brakeman on the Southern railway, was caught between two engines in the yards here and so badly crushed that death followed three hours later.

The Deadly Gasoline.

Anderson, Ind., Jan. 11.—Mrs. Laura Ford, wife of Daniel Ford, was probably fatally burned by an explosion of gasoline while she was filling a gas tank on a stove in which the burners were lighted, at her home in this city.
